

Third Grade Newsletter

August 27, 2010

We have sure had a busy week! I am very pleased with how well the students have learned their new routines. We have occasionally had difficulty in getting settled into our own desk and working quietly, but hopefully as the school days progress this will improve also. Things are quite different in third grade, with a new grade scale, new curriculum, more freedom, and also more responsibility.

Parents- we have a new Saxon math program! As you will see from your child's work, it is very different than what they did last year. They will have to answer questions from a book onto a separate paper, this has proved to be quite challenging! The assignments we did were done completely together as a class. If you have questions as the year progresses, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Next week's spelling words:
